

Zoom in on the World

New Version

MONTPELLIER, FRANCE

DECEMBER 17, 2019

In a bit more than a month, Heredis 2020 has already won over 10,000 genealogists...

This version's brand-new feature is Zoom in on the World, in reference to the famous software "La France à la Loupe" (Zoom in on France) edited and released 15 years ago by the creators of Heredis. Yet again, you'll be offered an all-in-one experience directly from Heredis: the very best features of this software are now extended to the entire world!

GEOLOCATING PLACE SUBDIVISIONS

One small step for mankind but one giant leap for genealogists ;-)

From now on, they will be able to geolocate subdivisions in a genealogy and retrieve more detailed data on their ancestors. It will thus enable them to enter the exact address of where an event took place and to visualize its precise location on the map. Genealogists may also manually drag the pin and choose to drop it on a specific place. Once this is done, the data can easily be copied into the index.

ZOOM IN ON THE WORLD

Zoom in on the World is a unique opportunity for genealogists to see where their ancestors used to live.

Can't seem to locate a birthplace? Need help with searches in a city? You would like to know what a specific locality in your genealogy looked like?

Thanks to Zoom in on the World, genealogists will have twice as many chances to find:

- All the details on a place
- The list of hamlets, or information on nearby rivers, on orography...
- Bordering places: very useful when, for instance, you are looking for a marriage certificate you can't seem to locate in the bride's birth town!

Locating a place no longer needs to be a never-ending quest! Is a place missing? No worries: this is a contributory service! Every genealogist will be able to add the missing information and then display it in Heredis!

Family tree mapping is now optimized so you can open large genealogy files. Better and improved ergonomics allow for a friendlier use.

As an example, genealogists will be able to navigate onto the places index, the immediate family, and even to center the map on a selected place.

Plus - cherry on top - they may leave this window constantly open and keep this useful tool handy at all times to launch their searches!

CUSTOM REPORTS

Even the most seasoned genealogists will be thrilled with Heredis 2020!

Two new types of reports can now be generated:

- A report that includes all of their places
- A report with every source from their genealogy file

They are fully customizable. Which means genealogists can build fully-customized reports, tailored to their personal needs: they can even use them later on as a basis for other tools! As an additional bonus, each portion of the reports is very easy to customize. Users will even be able to fit several fields in one single column!

Several reports can be left open while working simultaneously on a genealogy file: these reports will automatically be updated, thus making genealogists' work so much easier!

MIDNIGHT BLUE MODE

To make it easier on the eyes of Heredis users, a Midnight Blue mode is now available. Boasting a darker screen, it will give their eyes a break and will allow them to focus on their work for a longer period of time while avoiding visual fatigue.

IMPROVEMENTS/CORRECTIONS

As always, the Heredis Team is committed to improving existing features. Developers have been responsive to feedback from users on bugs they occasionally experience! Thus, many corrections have been implemented in the 2020 version!

Last but not least, Heredis 2020 still allows users to install their software on three personal computers. Additionally, they are free to manage their installations by themselves from their Heredis account by simply logging in at shop/heredis.com.

AVAILABILITIES

Heredis 2020 for Windows and for Mac have been made available to all genealogists since December 17, 2019 on heredis.com and on the App Store.
